

One million South Africans score a goal!

The Minister of Basic Education Ms Angie Motshekga, and the Deputy Minister of Basic Education Mr Enver Surty, wish to congratulate one million adults who can now read and write after participating in the Kha Ri Gude South African Literacy Campaign. In our celebration of International Literacy Day we recognise the empowering role of literacy and its importance for participation, citizenship, social development and redress in South Africa.

Minister A Motshekga

Deputy Minister E Surty

We wish to thank the 70 000 volunteers, who have given of their time to teach reading and writing. These, mostly young, volunteers must be applauded for the work that they have done to enable a million adults to become literate.

If you know adults who did not have the opportunity to learn to read or write, you can refer them to the Kha Ri Gude Literacy Campaign for the 2010 rollout. Blind and deaf learners are also welcome.
